RESEARCH STUDY FOR CHILDREN AGES 15 MONTHS-7 YEARS receiving treatment for autism or typically developing

This study will examine if a new investigational medical device, called the EarliPoint™ Assessment for Autism Spectrum Disorder, can be used to assess a child’s treatment progress (over time). The device detects the presence and severity of autism spectrum disorder and related developmental delays.

Study information
The EarliPoint™ Evaluation for Autism Spectrum Disorder (the device) tracks where children are looking as they watch videos on a screen, which shows us how typically developing children and children with autism visually explore the world differently. This study is looking at whether the device, when repeated over time, can be used to assess a child’s treatment progress.

What will my family be asked to do?
To participate in the study, you will be asked to review an Informed Consent document which explains all the details of the study. If you agree to allow your child to participate, you will be asked to sign and return the consent document to the researchers. You and your child will be asked to attend seven (7) study visits over a 6-month period. Your child will undergo testing by the EarliPoint device, and the researchers will observe and evaluate your child’s developmental status.

YOUR CHILD MAY BE ELIGIBLE IF THEY:

- Are 15-78 months of age
- Have an ASD diagnosis and is enrolled in treatment or is typically developing
- Are physically able to sit in a chair, highchair, or booster seat at a table and watch age-appropriate videos on a screen
- Have normal to corrected-to-normal vision and hearing

How long will this take?
Your child will participate in 7 study visits, each one month apart. The visits vary in length depending on your child’s developmental status and which visit it is. The visits range from 1 hour in length to 4 hours in length.

I would like to learn more. What do I do next?
